Income Tax Law Riddled.

The United States Supreme Court has shot the income tax law full of holes. Its decision was to be formally ratified at noon to-day. The income tax law as a whole is upheld, but only by a divided court. All incomes derived from rents are exempted from taxation by the Federal Government, and all incomes derived from State and municipal bonds are similarly exempted. In other respects the income-tax law stands as it was passed last August, but the result of the consultations in the Supreme Court shows very conclusively that the law can easily be picked to pieces piecemeal, provided there is brought to contest each particular point as it comes up.

It is a curious fact that the law which was passed at the dictation of the Populistic wing of a Democratic Congress has been distorted by the decision of the United States Supreme Court, clearly on constitutional grounds, in such a way that it will absolutely protect the class of capitalists most offensive to the Populistic element.

The landlords of the country will pay no income tax. The owners of bonds of almost any kind, either Federal, State, county or municipal, will also be free, while the business man, the manufacturer and the salaried employee will, for the present at least, be compelled to contribute to the Treasury of the United States Government 2 percent of all incomes in excess of $1000 per annum.

When the first vote was taken as to the general principle of the constitutionality of a law of Congress taxing incomes it was found that the court was evenly divided. Only eight Justices heard the arguments, Justice Jackson being too ill to appear in court.

The vote disclosed the fact that Chief Justice Fuller and Justices Field, Gray and Brewer were opposed to the law in toto. They believed it was unconstitutional as passed by Congress and that it was a direct tax, which according to the Constitution, must be levied among the States according to the population as returned by the census.

Justices Harlan, Brown, Shiras and White voted to sustain the law as a whole. They believed and supported their opinions by a convincing argument that while portions of the law were clearly unconstitutional, the general effect of an income tax could not be considered as opposed to the principles laid down in the constitution.

The most vigorous opponent of the law throughout was Justice Field, who would consent to no compromise; who believed the law unconstitutional from beginning to end, and who supported his opinions in all the consultations in the most vigorous and able manner. It is entirely probable that he will write and submit a strong dissenting opinion, holding that the law is unconstitutional in itself and hinting at the compromise which has been reached by which certain classes of capitalists will be unduly favored while others will have to pay the tax.

NOTICE.

To the Public:—

Owing to extreme ill health, it being impossible for me to attend to business, I have sold out to my former partner, Alex. Chisholm, who has been with me for the last ten years, and is known to you all.

He will continue to run the business at the same stand, and in the same line as I have, by executing the best of work, and doing justice to all.

I hope you will all trade with him, and bestow on him the same kindness and patronage as has been given me during the last sixteen years.

A bill of exchange will please be sent in as soon as convenient, and Mr. Chisholm is authorized to receipt the same.

I hereby take the opportunity of thanking the public for past patronage.
